Dr. Tomlinson's lectures discuss major works of Western art from a cultural perspective, situating each work or artist in the environment that resulted in its creation. The objective is to explore how and why art is produced and to enhance the experience of observation. Since reproduced images can never replicate the actual work, talks are often designed to focus on works that are reasonably accessible. She would hope by the end of each session everyone would be eager to go see for themselves. Contact: Esther Fendrick 732-494-3232 x3621 efendrick@jccmc.org.
